

Where Birds and Monkeys Play: Rain Forest Animals

World
Mark Oblinger

Chorus

Rain for - est, rain for - est, where the birds and the mon-keys play. Half the spe-cies in the world live in them to-day.

Rain for - est, rain for - est, al-ways wet and green. Half the spe-cies in the world, and some we've nev-er seen!

Verse

1. Birds and bats and great big cats, there are crea-tures high and low. Slith-er-ing snakes, frogs on logs, and sloths that move real slow.

Verse 2

Some butterflies' wings look like eyes.
Some bugs look like sticks
To keep away the things that prey, camouflage is a sneaky trick!

Verse 3

Frogs and salamanders hunt
for bugs or squishy slugs to eat.
Crocodiles and giant snakes prey on the animals they meet!

Verse 4

In the branches, keeping cool
above the jungle floor,
sleeps the spotted jaguar.
It's time to pounce and roar!

Chorus

And don't for - get the tou - cans! Each one has a gi - ant beak as col - or - ful as a rain - bow. Some e - ven have blue feet!

Chorus
